Sonnet Form

- 14-line poem
- Typically written in iambic pentameter
- Has a variable rhyme scheme
- Traditionally reflects upon a single sentiment, with a clarification or "turn" of thought, known as a volta, in its concluding lines
  - It can be helpful to think of sonnets as making an argument. Thinking about the relationship between the pre-volta lines and the post-volta lines can help you understand what argument a sonnet is making.
- Sometimes sonnets deviate from the traditional rhyme scheme or meter

Meter and iambic pentameter

- Meter: the rhythmical pattern of stressed and unstressed syllables in verse
- lambic pentameter: a metrical pattern wherein a line consists of five feet (or groups of syllables) featuring one unstressed syllable followed by one stressed syllable
  - da DUM da DUM da DUM da DUM da DUM
  - who TOLD me TIME would EASE me OF my PAIN
- Foot: the basic unit of measurement of accentual-syllabic meter. A foot usually contains one stressed syllable and at least one unstressed syllable

Petrarchan (or Italian) Sonnet

- Divides the sonnet into an octave (8 lines) and sestet (6 lines)
- Octave rhyme scheme: ABBAABBA
- Sestet rhyme scheme can vary: CDCDCD, CDECDE, CDDCDD, CDDECE, CDDCCD, CDDCEE, CDCDEE
- Volta occurs between the octave and sestet

Shakespearean (or English) Sonnet

- Divides the sonnet into three quatrains and a couplet
- Uses the rhyme scheme ABAB CDCD EFEF GG
- Volta occurs before the final couplet

 **It is possible to have a sonnet that blends Petrarchan and Shakespearean form

"Time does not bring relief; you all have lied" Edna St. Vincent Millay

Time does not bring relief; you all have lied Who told me time would ease me of my pain! I miss him in the weeping of the rain; I want him at the shrinking of the tide; The old snows melt from every mountain-side, And last year's leaves are smoke in every lane; But last year's bitter loving must remain Heaped on my heart, and my old thoughts abide. There are a hundred places where I fear To go,—so with his memory they brim. And entering with relief some quiet place Where never fell his foot or shone his face I say, "There is no memory of him here!" And so stand stricken, so remembering him.
